FIELD TOUR: Evaluating the Effects of Targeted Grazing

Methods and findings from a 3-year rancher-led research project supported by Western SARE

Liz Reikowski, Willow Creek Land and Cattle, has conducted her own research on grazing leases in south San Benito County with funding from a Sustainable Agriculture Research & Education (SARE) grant. This rancher-led project, Adding value to grassfed cattle operations by restoring rangeland health with targeted grazing on California's Central Coast, is evaluating the effects of targeted, rotational grazing to control weeds and support native plants on two ranches. Liz, her brother Matt, and partner Blake Duncan will share findings and demonstrate rotational grazing techniques at a historic ranch near Pinnacles National Park.

AFTERNOON

San Benito Working Landscapes Group Partner Roundtable

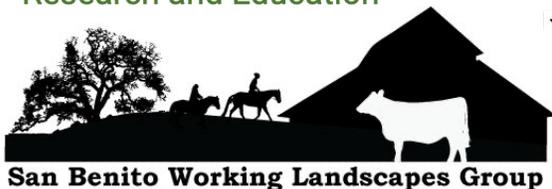

The partner roundtable is a great opportunity for ranchers, landowners, agencies, organizations, and local elected leaders to share updates related to the conservation of and on working agricultural lands in the San Benito County area.

Please register by May 3rd to order a burrito from Tacos la Potranca de Jalisco in King City. Or bring your own lunch if you prefer!
