

UC Master Gardeners of Santa Barbara County and the Lompoc Public Library present:

A Guide to Edible Flowers, Barn Owls and Pest Management, and the Health Benefits of Eating Fresh from a Garden

The UC Master Gardeners of Santa Barbara County and the Lompoc Public Library invite you to join us for a free, in person presentation Tuesday, February 20, 2024, 5:00pm to 7:00pm at the Lompoc Public Library, located at 501 E. North Avenue, Lompoc, CA 93436.

Master Gardener Debbi Knauff will present "Growing Edible Flowers".

She will provide information on which garden flowers are edible and which are not, and strategies for successfully growing flowers in your garden.

Master Gardener Dave McDonald will present "Barn Owls" and discuss the benefits of attracting Barn Owls into your garden as a part of your vertebrate pest management strategies. Dave will also discuss Barn Owl box construction.

Finally, a UCCE CalFresh Healthy Living Community Education Specialist Abbi Marrs will talk about the "Health Benefits of Eating Fresh from a Garden".

This is a unique opportunity to learn about three topics which will support you and your family in your efforts to home garden and bring fresh nutritious foods to your table. We hope you will join us.
